This works fine, but if the user taps the button while another scene is already running (i.e. 'Scene2') - the same scene is repeatedly called. I would like the two scenes to play on top of one another, or to stop launching 'Scene1' if 'Scene2' is already running. What should I do? Thanks! A: This is a known Cocos2D bug that has been reported several times to Cocos2D's developers. Unfortunately, they haven't fixed it yet. So, the best thing that you can do is to detect the currently running scene yourself. That way, you can decide which one you want to run and stop the unwanted. #!/bin/bash python..qa_net.py ${INPUT_FILE} ${OUTPUT_DIR}/labels_$(date +%Y-%m-%d_%H-%M-%S).txt # the output filename is unique to each GPU of the dataset # but all filenames for the same GPU have the same timestamp # the output filename is the current time, in format yyyyMMdd_HHmms [ -z "$OUTPUT_TIME" ] && OUTPUT_TIME=$(date +%Y-%m-%d_%H-%M-%S) OUTPUT_DIRS=$(dirname ${OUTPUT_DIR}) OUTPUT_DIR="${OUTPUT_DIRS}/labels_{$OUTPUT_TIME}" echo -e "$OUTPUT_DIR" echo -e "$OUTPUT_DIR" >> ${OUTPUT_DIR}/labels_{$OUTPUT

The facile and versatile thiol-ene click conjugation reaction is an effective method to attach peptide/protein ligands to gold nanoparticles for the development of peptide-functionalized nanocarriers. Gold nanoparticles functionalized with thiol-ene click conjugation chemistry were efficiently synthesized using citrate-capped gold nanoparticles and PEG-yne precursors. The click reaction was performed at room temperature and the product with controlled size and PEG/protein ratio was obtained. Moreover, it was found that the labeled nanoparticles could be separated using an optional gel filtration column and the collected purified products could be reused to produce second generation functional nanoparticles. The click reaction was characterized by dynamic light scattering (DLS), transmission electron microscopy (TEM), UV-vis spectrophotometry and fluorescence spectrophotometry. The experimental results showed that a highly efficient and clean click reaction was achieved in the current method. The nanoparticles were successfully utilized to label biological cells and achieve targeted nanoparticles. The cytotoxicity studies revealed that the gold nanoparticles could be employed as a safe nanocarrier for the delivery of bioactive compounds. Finally, the application of the prepared nanoparticles for peptide conjugation was demonstrated.Q: IIS 7.5 - memory leaks with jquery and a third party script I am using a third party javascript script (namely eyecon.keenetic.com/utilities/j 6d1f23a050
